What is a Prejudgment Claim of Right to Possession?

A Prejudgment Claim of Right to Possession is a form that you can file if:

- There is an unlawful detainer (eviction) filed in court by the owner of the property where you live, seeking to remove the tenants, AND
- You are not named as a defendant in the eviction case; AND
- You claim a legal right to remain on the property.

What are the consequences of filing the claim?

By filing this document you make yourself a defendant in the eviction case and you could subject yourself to a judgment against you if you lose.

What happens if I do not file the claim?

You will be bound by what the court decides in the eviction case against the tenant(s) named in the complaint. If the court orders the named tenant(s) to move out, then you will have to move out too.

- Read the Notice Section Carefully

- Write in the case number. You will also find this on the complaint.
- Write in your name.
